The Sagging Operations Of The Invaders

In the name of Allah, the Merciful, the Compassionate

American and British forces have jointly launched operations in Helmand province, south Afghanistan. This is in a time that during the past eighth years, never a day has passed or a night without Mujahideen sustaining great losses on the enemy. However, this time, they have resorted to launching vast operations. Yet it is but an effort in fiasco. Their advancement has been blocked and neutralized. They are just frustrating. This is not a mere claim made by us.

The New York times reporter from Lashkar Gah, the center of Helmand province, writes that operation in Helmand is not a new phenomenon; it is carried out on daily basis for the last eight years. But these operations have not spelled out any result. The New York times reporter says that the current operation will not achieve the desired target because people of Helmand are nearing a stage of populous upheaval. This has made the environment invincible for the American troops as they are trying to engage Taliban. On the basis of his report, even villagers and farmers have taken up arms against the invading army in some district of Helmand province.

They have pledged to carry on the resistance against the foreign soldiers. In fact, the Helmand operation is a failed formula. They have already lost a very eminent general of the British army, which has shaken the spine of the invading forces. The British army has said that the loss of Jim Daton was irreparable to the British army. He is the first high-ranking British military officer died in armed confrontation after the Falkland war in 1982.

Last week, some sources relayed a film produced by the British ministry of defense. The film is a prototype of Helmand province produced with a cost of US $. 23 millions. It is a collection of dummy valleys, plots, roads and deserts of Helmand province to train those soldiers who are leaving for Helmand in Afghanistan. The aim is to familiarize the soldiers with the attacks, ambushes, explosions and threats in the province. The report says, the soldiers are scared merely on seeing the prototype of Helmand as if they were really in Helmand province or in the deserts of Sangain district and are under the attack of the Taliban.

The Islamic Emirate of Afghanistan believes, the current US and British operations in Helmand province will prove being another fiasco. However, they have tried to show it larger-than-life by resorting to spreading disinformation and propaganda. They were claiming prior to the operations that these operations would force the Taliban to pull out of Helmand.

They destroyed villages; killed thousands of civilians and tortured them but still victory is a far cry; the Mujahideen have not withdrawn an inch from their positions. Even the Mujahideen have increased in strength. Western circles acknowledge the strength and military capability of Mujahideen.

Because of atrocities and civilian blood bath in Helmand province at the hand of the invaders that even farmers have taken up arms to fight against the invading forces. To force Taliban to withdraw from Helmand is a mere daydreaming. However, they will launch propaganda about their victories but it will not portray the realities on ground. Mujahideen of the Islamic Emirate will defeat the invaders with the passage of time. They will face a shameful defeat if God willing. It is up to the invaders to feel the sensitiveness of situation in Helmand. The Mujahid people of Helmand will prove once again their preparedness and steadfastness versus the foreign invasion.

Inshallah (If God willing)
